TO MAKE A STORES STORES TO STOR

Trust us – it'll make you smile too!

Hold the door open for somebody – it's waaay better than letting it slam shut in their face!

Emails have fast taken over the good ol' pen and paper. Write a handwritten note to someone thanking them for the job they're doing. It could be the founder of a charity or even the writer of a book or article that changed your life (cough this one cough).

Received fantastic service on public transport? Call the company and let them know. Don't forget to take note of the details of the service (time/date).

Love the boots that girl at Gloria Jeans is wearing? Let her know!

Clean up after yourself.
Classic example: If you're at a food court,
don't leave your rubbish
on the table "for the cleaners".
BTW, saying "they get paid to do it" doesn't make it right.

We all know how tough it can be to study, so why not leave encouraging post-its in the next library book you borrow? Try things like "You can do it" and "Don't give up".

Next time you see someone who looks like she could be friends with your grandmother struggling to carry her groceries, help her carry them.

Volunteer at a nursing home or a children's hospital. You could read books or even dress like a clown – the extravagance is up to you.

Did a waiter or waitress treat you really well at a café? Let their manager know.

Instead of asking for gifts for your birthday, ask your friends and family to donate the money they would have spent to a charity. We love the National Breast Cancer Foundation, but any will do.

Say please and thank you. Note: This works on strangers AND people you know.

So you and your mum have decided to do your weekly grocery shop on a Thursday night. You've got a trolley full of stuff, and someone behind you only has a packet of batteries and a bottle of milk. They'd be forever grateful if you let them go ahead of you – and you'll feel great too!

you have a great

Stop spreading rumours about people at school you don't even know.

If you see someone trying to take a selfie, offer to take the photo for them. This works especially well with tourists.

Notice a new girl starting school this term? All you've got to do is say hello and offer to show her around and you could have a friend for life. GF
